Full Face Shield

General Considerations

iMask+ Face Shields should be considered as being non-sterile on delivery. The iMask+ Face Shield product is suitable for multiple uses with appropriate cleaning between uses.

Therefore, it is imperative that each hospital, facility, or user should determine appropriate use / reuse protocols based on a review of the product by the hospital's or other entity's Infection Control group. Face shields are generally not used alone, but in conjunction with other protective equipment and are therefore classified as adjunctive personal protective equipment. Guidelines for their use vary between governmental agencies and professional societies and little research is available regarding their efficacy.

We recommend each person to have two personalised iMask+ Face Shield. Some may even wish to have extras so that previous ones have time to be sanitised ready for use the next day.
